- The building set a record when the foundation was built for the highest continuous poured volume of concrete.
- The construction of this building is notable in that it was constructed on time and under budget.
- The building has an extra garage, which is located at 637 Wilshire Boulevard. It is connected through a tunnel to the garage under the tower.
- The extra parking garage, which is a three level basement concrete structure, has a capacity of 579 cars, while the garage under the tower can store 243 cars.
- The building has a center core, where elevators and stairs are located. Three stair shafts are located in the building.
- Each regular floor has a net floor area of about 17,500 square feet (1,626 m<sup>2</sup>).
- Mechanical rooms are located on floors 4, 5, 22, 42, 61, and 62.
- The 6th floor is completely occupied by an employee cafeteria. A kitchen is also located on the 60th floor.
- The California Club formerly occupied the southern part of this site.
- With the construction of this building, the banking area of the city of Los Angeles was moving from the famous Spring Street for the first time in history.
- On May 4, 1988, a fire on the 12th floor ended in one person dead and 40 injured with five floors severely damaged.
